ELECT LAFAYETTE MAN AS PRINCIPAL

CITY SCHOOL BOARD ACTS ON RECOMMENDATION OF SUPER-
INTENDENT H. A. HENDERSON
AND ELECTS J. V. MASTERS OF LAFAYETTE, PRINCIPAL OF
LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL—PROPO-
SITION IS SENT TO MASTERS
TODAY.

IS AN ENERGETIC MAN

J. V. Masters, of Lafayette, who is now at the head of the History department in the Jefferson high school of that city, has been offered the position as principal of the Greencastle high school to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Murray A. Daiman, who has accepted a position teaching in the Manual Training high school of Indianapolis. The city school board at a special meeting in the office of Superintendent H. A. Henderson this morning elected Masters to the position. A notice of his election was sent to him immediately after the meeting and some proposition of the proposition probably will be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

The school board elected Mr. Masters to the position on the recommendation of Superintendent H. A. Henderson. Mr. Henderson recommended that Mr. Masters be given the position on the condition of the Lafayette school authorities would consent to his release, should he accept the offer.

Mr. Masters has had thirteen years' experience as an instructor and is said to be efficient in all branches of school work. He has been at the head of the History department of the Jefferson high school of Lafayette for the past four years and is considered a valuable man at that place. Before his experience teaching in the Lafayette high school he was the principal of the Travelagar, Ind., high school for two years and superintendent of the public schools at Oakton for the same period of time. Practically all branches of high school work has been taught by Mr. Masters and he is equally efficient in all of them. He is a graduate of Indiana university with the class of 1908 and is now working for his master's degree, having completed two terms work.

Mr. Masters is an applicant for the position was here Saturday. He is an energetic man and takes great interest in all branches of school activities. It is said that athletics, debates and oratorical contests receive much attention from Mr. Masters. Superintendent Henderson stated today that Mr. Masters was by far the best of any of the numerous applicants for the position.

TO ASK $75,000 OF CITY OFFICERS

RUMOR HAS IT THAT GEORGE
L. HURST WILL FILE SUIT
ASKING DAMAGES OF JACK-
SONVILLE, FLA., OFFICERS—
ALLEGES FALSE IMPRISON-MENT.

WAS NOT GIVEN A HEARING

It is rumored here today that George L. Hurst, who recently was arrested and held by the Jacksonville, Fla., police, charged with being implicated in a bank robbery there, will file a suit asking $75,000 damages of the head of the city police department.

Hurst alleges that he was arrested and held in jail for several weeks without being given a preliminary hearing. It is said that the police had no evidence against Hurst and that when he finally was given a hearing the police could not produce a single witness against Hurst.

F. D. Ader, of Chicago, is here.

BASCOM THOMAS DIES SUDDENLY IN LIVERY BARN

END COMES TO PROMINENT
CLINTON TOWNSHIP FARMER
EARLY SATURDAY EVENING—HAD STARTED HOME NEAR MORTON, WHEN HE BECAME
SUDDENLY ILL.—RETURNED TO TOWN AND DIED WITHIN SHORT TIME.

CORONER HOLDS AUTOPSY

Lending his horse, which only a short time before he had started to drive to his home, Bascom Thomas, age 49, a prominent Clinton township farmer and Democrat, returned to the Hinton Livery Barn, from where he had started about fifteen minutes before, and complained of feeling very sick, at about 8:15 o'clock Saturday evening. Mr. Thomas was taken into the barn and placed on a couch. Within thirty minutes after he returned to the barn, he was dead.

To Owen Sigler, a friend, who happened to be at the barn when he returned, Mr. Thomas stated that after getting his rig from the barn he started to drive home. He had only gone a short distance, when he got very ill and fell from the buggy. He then turned around, and, leading the horse, went back to the barn.

Immediately he returned to the barn. Dr. Ayler was called and he gave Mr. Thomas medical attention and left him. Soon afterwards Mr. Thomas became very ill again and Dr. Ayler was called the second time. Before he got there, however, Mr. Thomas was dead.

The body was taken to the Hanna Undertaking establishment and late Saturday night Coroner C. T. Zaring, assisted by Dr. Jerome King, held an autopsy. The coroner today would not make public the result of the autopsy.

Mr. Thomas, who recently was elected assessor of Clinton township, was in Greencastle last Thursday on his way to Indianapolis where he attended a state meeting of township and county assessors on Friday.

He returned to Greencastle Friday night and was around Greencastle all day Saturday. His death occurred soon after he had started to his home.

Mr. Thomas leaves a widow. The funeral will be Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Union Chapel church and burial will be in the Union Chapel cemetery. Mr. Thomas resided about a mile west of Morton.

The funeral of Mack Brown, a young telegraph operator, whose death occurred at the home of his father-in-law, John Sellers, 4 miles south of this city, was held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The funeral services were in charge of Rev. Bert DeWitt Beck, pastor of the Locust street M. E. church. The interment was in the Putnamville cemetery. Brown was employed with the Vandalia railroad company for several years and worked as operator at Alameda, a stop east of the city.

Will Wetz was in Indianapolis on business today.

LAUNDRY TO USE WELL WATER, TOO

C. N. McWETHY, PROPRIETOR OF
THE HOME LAUNDRY, WILL PUT IN MACHINE TO "BREAK"
WATER—HAS WELL WHICH WILL FURNISH AMPLE SUP-PLY.

INCREASED RATES CAUSE

C. N. McWethy, proprietor of the Home Laundry, will follow the precedent set by the Kitchen Cabinet Co., Handle Factory, Barnaby Mill and other business concerns which have arranged to get their water supply from some other source than the Water Works Co., and will use a well, which was drilled several years ago, for a water supply for his laundry.

Mr. McWethy, like the other men, was forced to seek relief from the high water rates, which recently were doubled by the Indiana Public Utilities Commission.

In order to use the water from his well Mr. McWethy will have to install a machine which will cost several hundred dollars, which machine will "break" the water. The water as taken from the well is too hard to be used in the boilers and must go through a process which will "break" it and make it softer. Several of the machines which are used for this purpose are in operation in nearby towns and Mr. McWethy already has seen them in operation. He expects to get his machine installed and ready for use within the next few weeks.

Because of the great increase in water rates virtually every big user of water in Greencastle has or is arranging to secure their supply from some source other than the Water Works Co.

HURST RETURNS TO GREENCASTLE; FATHER TO SETTLE FOR AUTO.

George L. Hurst, who ran away from Greencastle last fall deserting his family and taking with him an automobile on which King & Morrison held a mortgage, returned to Greencastle this morning from Jacksonville, Fla., where he recently was released from the custody of the police who had arrested him on a charge of being implicated in a bank robbery. Hurst was accompanied by his father, Alf Hurst, who went to Florida last week to assist his son.

Upon his arrival in Greencastle, young Hurst went to the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Smith, where he will remain until his family troubles are patched up. It is said that he will return to his wife.

The father, it is said, soon after arriving in Greencastle this morning, called King & Morrison, the automobile agents, and notified them that the financial affairs between the son and the automobile firm would be settled by the father. This probable will result in the dismissal of the suit charging Hurst with removing mortgaged property from the county, which was sworn out by King & Morrison.

Upon the return of the men here this morning it was learned that the Jacksonville police had no evidence against Hurst whatever, and that he was simply being held pending an investigation. When he was given his preliminary hearing not a single witness appeared against him and so he was discharged.

The woman, who accompanied Hurst to Jacksonville, still is there. She has joined the Salvation Army, according to Mr. Hurst, but is anxious to get back to Indianapolis, where she formerly resided. The automobile which Hurst purchased here was driven all the way to Florida. Hurst sold it in Jacksonville for $400.

State of Indiana, Putnam County, SS:

To the Board of County Commissioners of Putnam County, Indiana:

We, the undersigned, respectfully represent to your Honorable Board that we and each of us, are freeholders and legal voters of Cloverdale Township in said county and state, and we petition and ask for the improvement of the following highways, located in said township and county, known as a part of the Cunot and Putnamville road, the Amos Nier road, and the Unity road, viz: Beginning at a point about twenty-four (24) rods east of the southwest corner of section sixteen (16) township twelve (12) north range four (4) west, in said township and county, where said Cunot and Putnamville highway intersects the south boundary of Putnam County. Thence in a northwesterly course about (60) rods to the west line of said section sixteen (16) thence north on the section line to the Amos Nier road, about 106 rods, thence east on said half section line through said section (16) into section (15) same township and range as above to a point where Nier road intersects the Unity road, a distance of about (360) rods, thence in a southeasterly course to a point where the said Unity road intersects the W. T. McMains highway, being about (100) rods, at a point about (100) feet north of the Doe creek bridge in said section (15) township (12) north range (4) west, said road being an improved highway; and the road asked to be improved is about (625) rods in length. We ask that said highway so asked to be improved, be improved to the established width of (33) feet, and that the same be graded, drained, bridged, and paved with crushed lime stone. We further show that said highway so asked to be improved is less than three miles in length and connects at the point of beginning with a township line and at the terminal with an improved highway, wherefore we ask that said highway so asked to be improved be so ordered without submitting the question thereof to the voters of said Cloverdale township. Said road to be known as the James A. Williamson et al road.

SKIM MILK IS VALUABLE

Is Considered the Best of All Poultry Rations to Supply the Need of Meat. Many poultry raisers, and especially beginners, find it a vexing problem to supply the meat portion of the ration for poultry that can not forage for bugs. Where skim milk is available this problem is quickly solved. Fed to poultry, skim milk has a higher value than when given to any other farm animals.

It has been found that the protein in milk is easily and quickly digested and this feature makes the milk one of the most, if not the most valuable sources of protein for poultry feeding. Dried casein is also very digestible, comparing favorably in this respect with milk. It is an excellent egg-producer.

If milk is not available and meat in some form must be bought, let it be reliable beef scraps. Feeding inferior quality of meat food is very risky where egg production is the desired object. Where hens will not eat meat foods from the hopper it is safest to discard them. Such foods should not be mixed in a mash to induce birds to eat them.

Co-operation that Co-operates

At a crossroads lay four farms, each owned and operated by an average farmer. Each of the farmhouse yards was bounded on two sides by the road. The farms were neighboring farms, but the farmers were not neighbor-farmers. In fact there was quite a bit of jealousy as to which of the quartet was getting on the best, making the most money out of his land and the most success out of his farming. It so happened that each of the four farmers depended on dairy cows for a good share of his profits. Dairy cows were not the main issue, but the milk checks were regarded as a ready return from a side line. About two cans per day was the output of each farm. Every morning each of these farmers would hitch up to his spring wagon, load in his two cans of milk and drive off to the station four miles away. They would meet frequently at the gates or on the roads and pass the time of day, exchange the countryside news, and even some notions as to the best methods of farming. And each morning each of these four farmers hitched up his own team and hauled his own two cans of milk to the station.

Sometimes it takes unusual events, even sad ones, to make men see things. So it came to pass that a little girl died, the fair-haired, smiling daughter of one of the farmers. She was a favorite with everyone; all of the crossroads community was saddened. All the neighbors came to comfort the bereaved parents. That is how it came about that on the morning following this little girl's death Jones' neighbor on the north hauled four cans of milk instead of two. In Jones' hours of sadness his neighbor was doing a neighborly act.

But the act set Jones' neighbor to thinking. Here he was hauling his own milk and Jones' too—yet the same team and the same wagon sufficed for both. Come to think of it, why wasn't there room in that wagon for the other two neighbors' milk, also? There was room, one wagon and a team could handle eight cans of milk as easily as two. Why not save that trip for three farmers and three teams every morning? In that time three farmers and three teams could do a lot of useful farm work. Later there was a meeting of the four crossroads farmers in Jones' neighbor's home. And after that only one man of the four went to town each morning. Co-operation was born of necessity. Its growth was natural. It continued to be effective because the need continued. Each morning as the milk was loaded there were at least four remarks as to how in the world the four men could have been as many fools all these years.

Thus began a simple co-operative enterprise and thus it led to better things. These four farmers became neighbors indeed. Their lives grew more social, their homes more beautiful, their farms more fruitful. Go now to that little community and behold the results of true neighborliness. Ask whence came the marvelous change and at least four farmers will say: co-operation that co-operates.

Creed of a Busy and Progressive Farmer

I believe in a permanent agriculture, a soil that will grow richer rather than poorer from year to year.
I believe in 100-bushel corn and in 50-bushel wheat, and I shall not be satisfied with anything less.
I believe that the only good weed is a dead weed and that a clean farm is as important as a clean conscience.
I believe in the farm boy and the farm girl, the farmer's best crops, the future's best hopes.
I believe in the farm woman, and will do all in my power to make her life easier and happier.
I believe in a country school that prepares for a country life and a country church that teaches its people to love deeply and live honorably.
I believe in community spirit, a pride in home and neighbors, and I will do my part to make my community the best in the state.

I believe in the farmer, I believe in far mife, I believe in the inspiration of the open country.
I am proud to be a farmer, and I will try earnestly to be worthy of the name.
Do not take the chicks out of the incubator until the hatch is complete, but if there is no nursery under the tray where the chicks will drop when dried off it is sometimes advisable to remove the empty shells once or twice, doing it as quickly as possible.

He is the proudest of men who has a son studying at a college of agriculture. Send yours if he wants to go.

Mrs. Charley Conklin, who has been confined to her home for several days by illness, is much improved and her friends believe that she will be able to be out by the latter part of the week.

Lee Woods, one of the Putnam county's stock dealers, last week sold to Edgar Perkins, of near Morton 10 head of yearling steers, which are reported to be exceptional good ones. All the calves were short horns.

The sudden death of Isaac Thomas, assessor of Clinton township, on Saturday evening, calls to mind the death of Warren Holland, his predecessor in the office of township assessor. Mr. Holland, while visiting relatives who live south of Greencastle last year, was suddenly taken ill and died within a few hours. Mr. Thomas then was appointed to succeed him as assessor. At the last election Mr. Thomas was elected assessor of the township.

The funeral of Robert Crow, a prominent farmer and stock buyer of this vicinity, was held in the home northeast of the city Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Hilliary A. Gohin of the university had charge of the services. The interment was in the Forest Hill cemetery. The pall-bearers were Andrew Black, Edward Black, William M. Houck, Charles E. Butcher, John W. Stoner and Andrew Hirt.

Superintendent H. A. Henderson addressed the pupils of the third ward public school this afternoon and told them of the Battle of Lexington and Concord in the Revolutionary War. Mr. Henderson visited the scene of the famous battleground and is thoroughly acquainted with the geographical conditions of that part of the country. He took a trip over the ground on a bicycle several years ago. The talk was very interesting and the pupils thoroughly enjoyed the description of the battleground pictured by Mr. Henderson.

Everett W. Long, 24 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Long, who reside just southeast of this city, and Miss Ione Fry, 19 years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Fry of this city were quietly married at the Locust street church parsonage on east Anderson street this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the presence of Miss Ida Long and Miss Mary Long, sisters of the groom, Miss Ruth Fry, sister of the bride, and Ezra Houck. The young people are well known here and are receiving congratulations from many of their friends. They will reside on the Long farm northeast of town.

A meeting of the veteran members of the DePauw baseball team and the men who will be candidates for this year's team will be held in the college gymnasium during the next few days to elect a captain for the 1915 aggregation. Coach Jack Grimm of Indianapolis will be here and will meet all the baseball men for the first time this season. "Jum" Lewis, the crack catcher for the DePauw teams of the past three years, who was the captain-elect of this year's team is not in school and a man will be elected to fill his position at the head of the aggregation.

It probably will be several days before operations are resumed at the oil well on the James Miller farm near Bainbridge. A shipment of casing from an Ohio factory is on its way here and is not expected to arrive for several days. The drillers are awaiting the arrival of the casing and will not sink the well any deeper until it is cased the entire depth. About 500 or 600 feet of casing must be sunk. About 100 feet of water stands in the well at the present time. It is said the oil has raised from the bottom of the well to the top of the water is plainly in evidence. Oil in large quantities has surely been found for it takes a good showing of oil to raise to the top of the water from that depth. The well is now capped and no work is being done on the Miller farm.

Saturday afternoon while Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burke, of West Eighth street, were coasting down the grade leading to the Santa Ana river bridge, their car got away from Mr. Burke and crashed into a wagon and then rebounded into the end of the bridge. Mr. Burke became confused in trying to pass between the wagon and two boys on bicycles. When the machine struck the bridge Mrs. Burke was thrown out of the car, but was not badly hurt. The car was badly damaged. This information was published in one of the Riverside, (Cal.) papers and was sent here to P. R. Christie by W. A. Correll, secretary of the Riverside Water Co. Mr. Correll and Mr. Burke both formerly lived here. Mr. Burke ran a grocery store in the room now occupied by Christie's Shoe store and later at the corner of Vine and Washington streets.

The door was not latched and she summoned Mr. Leachman from another part of the house. A window in the bath was room was broken out and an entrance made to the room. PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN

President Grose, of DePauw, Speaks at Caleb Mills Hall in Indianapolis.

"A man who taught the sacredness of government, the wickedness of treason, the dignity of labor, the strength of integrity; a man not dwarfed by vanity, nor softened by luxury nor warped by false principles or prejudices; a man whom sectional interests could not swerve, or personal feelings bind, whom money could not bribe, or danger daunt; a man whom the tears of a woman would persuade, but whom the censures of a cabinet officer did not move; of boundless pity, but as firm as iron, full of tenderness, yet uncompromising with justice." Such was the characterization of Lincoln, "the most illustrious and best loved American," made by President George R. Grose, of DePauw, in speaking before the Indianapolis public school teachers in Caleb Mills hall Thursday afternoon.

The subject of the address was "Our First American, Abraham Lincoln." Dr. Grose spoke with remarkable power and ability. In all he had to say the speaker endeavored to bring his hearers close to the man himself and, as a result, portrayed the character and innermost life of the emancipator in a wonderful manner.

Not Easily Explained.

The career of Lincoln he pointed out is not easily explained because he himself is not easily explained. "Lincoln," he said in this connection, "was physically strong, intellectually a genius and morally a prince. In personality he combined the energy of the new continent, with Spartan fortitude and Christian charity."

Lincoln's task, Dr. Grose said, was to preserve the Union, but ultimately to overthrow slavery. At the time when he was called on to do this it was pointed out that he did not have the support of a single royal government save one, and that was Russia.

"If the measure of man is established by his achievements, where is the equal of Lincoln?" he asked. "If by wisdom of political policy, nobility of character, by loftiness of ideals or pre-eminence of service, where is the equal?"

Lincoln, Dr. Grose said, was richly endowed with three elements, a purpose, a wide vision and a practical sense. In his vision he surpassed the statesmen of his time and saw the future of the country itself.

However, Lincoln, according to Dr. Grose, was by no means a dreamer, but had a practical sense that was unsurpassed and kept his ideal clearly before him at all times.

Moral Character.

Nobility of moral character was the second great element in Lincoln's nature which was discussed. "This may be characterized in one word," said Dr. Grose, "honesty."

He recalled that when his advisers were trying to persuade Lincoln to leave out certain parts of his Cooper institute speech, Lincoln replied: "It is true. And if it be that I go down because of this speech then let me go down linked to the truth, and die in the advocacy of what is right and just."

The third great element in the life of "the first American," which Dr. Grose brought out, was his faith in God.

In closing his address the speaker turned for a moment to the estimates which some of the great men of the country have made of Lincoln, giving as one of the greatest tributes the words of Grant, "No word of censure ever fell from his lips."—Indianapolis News.

Nuggets of Information.
In these days of domestic science and manual training it is interesting to know that sewing and knitting were taught in the first frame schoolhouse erected in Farmington, Maine, more than a century and a quarter ago.

A railroad man found a snail walking along a rail, and measuring its spread for a certain distance found that it traveled one foot in four minutes, or at the rate of one mile in 14 2/3 days.

The muskrat is the most important fur-bearing animal of North America. In one year 5,500,000 muskrat skins were put on the market, realizing to the trappers a sum approximately $1,700,000.

It is reported that a certain musician, disgusted with the chattering that usually takes the place of listening during a musical performance, arranged with his violin, his violinello and the rest that the music should suddenly stop in the midst of the loudest passage in the piece.

It was done, and clear and distinct above all the loud talkers' voices, these words were heard: "We always fry ours in lard!"

THE DIVING WOMEN OF JAPAN

Facts About Female Shell Divers Who Offered to Clear Mines from Kia-Chau Bay.

For centuries past one of the curious customs of Japan has been the employment of women as divers in the pearl industry.

Formerly whole families became divers, but later the prerogative became more and more that of the women until now fully 90 per cent of Japanese pearls are gathered by Japanese women divers. A movement begun several years ago to replace them with men has been opposed bitterly by the women.

Along the shores of Ago Bay, in Shima Province, and Gokasho Bay, in Ise Province, most of the women divers have their homes. Both bays are a succession of narrow, shallow inlets, with gently sloping beaches reaching away to a fringe of hills and trees. The inlets abound in oysters, providing the inhabitants with a means of livelihood.

The ambition of every girl in the Japanese family of Shima, is to become a diver. From their earliest years the water is their playgrounds, so when they reach the age of 13 or 14 years, when they can leave school, most of them are qualified to take their turn at diving. A mother will superintend the diving exercises of a daughter with all the care that a German mother instructs her daughter in household tasks.

Once a diver, a girl's life becomes a part of a well-ordered machine until she has passed her time of usefulness in the pearl industry. From eight to ten hours a day, with only two holidays a month, she dives down in from fifteen to forty-five feet of water after oysters. January and February are usually too cold for much diving, but even then from one to five hours a day are spent in and on the water.

Until she is about 25 years old a woman does not reach the point of greatest efficiency as a diver. Her strength and agility develops until then. It is remarkable that making only from 15 cents to a dollar (30 sen to 2 yen) a day some of them will save a considerable amount of money. Their savings are their dowry, and the most thrifty is generally the most sought after as a wife by the Japanese men.

As the continual exposure to wind and water soon destroys whatever beauty the diver may have as a girl, physical attractiveness is rarely a reason for courtship in Shima Province. It is every girl's ambition to marry early. Then, usually, her husband develops into a drone, living a lazy life in the village while the wife supports the family. It is remarkable that the frequent births will keep the diving women from their employment only a brief time, usually a few days.

The women wear a special dress while diving. White muslin bloomers and waist, with a short skirt, cover the body. The hair is twisted into a tight knot on top of the head, with a cloth wound through it. Glass goggles protect the eyes. Most of the diving is done from boats, but some have regular stations along the shore or on the many rocky islets that fill the inlets of the oyster bays.

Five or six divers to the boat, they will set out from their picture villages along the shore early each morning. Man's only part is to row and steer the boat. Each diver carries a small tub, which, attached to her waist, is used to carry the oysters. They work from one to two hours and then rest thirty minutes or so. The labor goes on until eight or ten hours have passed and the boat is filled. Then back to the village and the preparation of the evening meals for their lords.

Few of them quit their occupation once they become divers. From the ages of 25 to 35 years is considered their period of highest efficiency. After reaching 45 not many are able to stand the strain, and then, their skin blackened, seamed and coarse, they pass their remaining years doing the drudgery ashore. Few live many years after retiring, and frequently a man is able to remarry and obtain another supporter for his declining years.—Kansas City Times.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP.
(By Lew Ellingham.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 14.—

This seems to be the open season for the discussion, both within and without the legislature, of a compulsory primary election law. Those who favor and those who do not favor such a radical departure from the present method of nominating the state, district, county and township candidates, are busy giving expression to their views. One of the latest to break into print up on this subject is the Hon. Thomas Taggart, national committeeman and for years the conceded leader among the Indiana Democrats. He tried to make this one fact plain, and that is, that the views to which he gave expression, are his own personal views and that he has no desire to foist them upon his party, and in this his sincerity can not be questioned. It can not be questioned because Mr. Taggart's idea is to present a complete primary election bill—with teeth, whatever that means—have the same adopted by the present general assembly and submitted to the people at the next general election in 1916. An outline of such a bill has been drafted and according to its provisions the voter would be safe guarded by the general election laws of the state. The drafted bill provides for the nomination of all candidates for United States Senator, representatives in the national house of congress, elective state officials (members of the general assembly, circuit, superior and probate judges, prosecuting attorneys, elective county and township officials, elective city officials, delegates to national party conventions, members of party state central committees, county and city committees, and one member of the national committee for each party. The date for this primary is designated as the third Tuesday in May of each election year. It will be held under the general election laws of the state, thus eliminating all the frauds that are said to prevail under the make-shift primary laws now in force in certain counties of the state. One section provides that no person holding an appointive office either in the state, county, or township shall be eligible to serve on any party committee. Every candidate other than county and township, shall qualify by certifying his name to the secretary of state, and one of the features of this qualification is the payment to the secretary of state of a fee equal to one per cent. of one year's salary of the office to which the one so qualifying, aspires. Every presidential year the presidential electors and delegates to the national convention are also to run the gauntlet of this primary. Provision is also made for a preferential vote on the candidates for president and vice president. If there is anything omitted I have failed to find it. The object in submitting a bill of this kind is for the purpose that should the people of the state favor a primary they know in advance the kind of a primary they will get. It closes the gate for an affirmative vote and then for a general assembly to enact into law only a pretended primary law. The draft of the bill mentioned certainly goes full length, and has enough "teeth" to satisfy the most hungry primary enthusiast in the country. The writer sees nothing but merit in the submission of such a primary bill. Put the matter square up to the electors and let them decide whether it is good, bad or indifferent and whether or not they want such a law written into the statutes of the state. Why not? Is not this a pretty good compliance with a state platform written after but a short and unsatisfactory discussion of the subject, and over which the opinion was about equally divided. Think this over well, and then give your members of the legislature your best opinion as to what course he should take when the matter is presented for legislative action.

The Indianapolis News is trying to muddy the primary election water. The News has gone on record against such a primary and has presented the defects of such a law and presented them well. Just now that newspaper is jingling to the extent of criticizing the leaders of the Democratic party for not carrying out their platform pledge upon this question. It seems to me one up a tree that the News should be an honest exponent of what they believe upon the primary question. They should either be for or against a primary, and not be for a primary by inundo just to play a little politics against a party that placed a primary declaration in its platform. The question before the house is whether a primary law is a beneficial addition to the laws of the state. Every one in favor or opposed to such a law should be presenting arguments that would tend to enlighten those interested so that the solution of the problem would be made easier.

A new state printing law is now among the possibilities of the present general assembly. The bill has been drawn and will be submitted to the senate. It provides for nine classes and a contract can be made for each class. Instead of the secretary of state, auditor of state, and reporter of the supreme court being members of the printing board, the Governor and two appointees of the Governor comprise this board. The general outline of the present law was followed and in all it likely is an improvement over the present system of transacting this part of the state's business.
